Steve and Mary Depew's pond. Come see it on the tour
July 13.

A GFI, or GFCI – Ground Fault Circuit Interrupter device protects us from receiving electric shocks from faults in the electrical devices we use in our home. It works by comparing the input current on the hot side to the output current on the neutral side. If there's the slightest difference in current, on the order of a few milliamps, then there is current leaking out somewhere, possibly through somebody's body. To protect us in this situation, the device very quickly cuts off the power supply to the leaking device, within 20-30 milliseconds, greatly reducing any possible human tissue damage from errant current.

These are some GFI's. If you don't feel confident installing a hard wired one, there are also the portable ones that you just plug into any outlet and you have three more outlets that are now GFI's. The cost is about $29.00.

You would not allow your children or grandchildren to ride in a car without a seat belt, so why take the chance of a shock because you did not have a GFI.
